Women with Vision

volume 37, issue 5, December 2021

Celebrating Our 75th year!

Young women with dreams become women with vision

Our Mission: To advance gender equity for women and girls through research, education, and advocacy.

Our vision: Equity for all.

Our values: Nonpartisan, fact-based, integrity, inclusion, and intersectionality.

Holiday messages from AAUW's National CEO

During this season of gratitude, I want to express my sincere thanks for your support of AAUW. Whether you've given your money, your time or your activism—or perhaps all three—you are the reason this organization has persisted for 140 years. And you're the reason we're moving boldly forward.

Who could imagine, in 1881, that in 2021 our country's Vice President would be a woman of color? Or that the World Trade Organization would be led by the first woman and first African to serve in that role—Dr. Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, an AAUW fellowship alumna and 2021 AAUW Alumnae Recognition Awardee?

The answer, of course, is visionary women like you. Because of you, AAUW helped launch the careers of the best and brightest women for more than a century. Just think about the world-changing women who will emerge over the next century thanks to your support. Or the life-changing policies your activism will enable so all women and girls can thrive in workplaces and classrooms.

As enthused as I am about women world leaders, I'm equally inspired by people like you who make a difference everyday through your generosity and deep commitment to our cause.

With deep appreciation,

Gloria L. Blackwell

Chief Executive Officer

For 140 years, supporters like you have helped AAUW become the leading voice for gender equity—and we’ve driven real progress. I’m so proud to be leading this remarkable organization at a remarkable time. And I couldn’t be more pleased to announce that, thanks to a generous gift from AAUW’s Board of Directors, committee leaders and staff, we’re offering the largest matching gift opportunity in our organization’s history this giving season to mark our 140th anniversary.

That means every donation you make through December 31 will be DOUBLED up to an astounding $75,000! Your gift of $50 becomes $100, $100 becomes $200, and so on. And, of course, a donation of $140 becomes $280. In other words, a dollar for every year in our history will be doubled to ensure another 140 years of striding towards equity. Now that’s an investment in the future!

It’s hard to believe that, when Marion Talbot founded AAUW in 1881, few women had the opportunity to go to college. Today, women outnumber men in earning degrees at nearly every level.

Think about how much more we can do together over the next century plus. With your help, we’ll make certain every woman and girl has equal access to leadership opportunities, fair pay and discrimination-free workplaces and classrooms.

Please, give now to double your investment in gender equity.

Thank you for your support,

Gloria L. Blackwell

Chief Executive Officer

Did You Know?

The Fallbrook Music Society was established in 1978 with assistance from AAUW Fallbrook and our Chamber of Commerce. At the time of its incorporation, it was (and possibly still is) the only small community of its kind to have such a music society.

Formerly performing at the library, this year, FMS has found a new home at the Mission Theater. This year, in addition to a series of six concerts, there will be a special Holiday Concert on December 11. For more information, visit fallbrookmusicsociety.org.

Dear AAUW Members,

Our November meeting brought women artists and architects to life through the wonderful presentation by Robin Douglas. She shared lesser-known women artists; artists who created powerful and important artwork. It is amazing how many were married to famous artists. I think we all could have listened to her for hours.

I want to shout out a thank you to our members that helped as hostesses: Maria Viernes, Alice Orr, Chris Assad, Margie Mosavi, Cynthia Young, and Karen Trapane.

Act Now to Build Back Better

This year, AAUW prioritized women in crisis recovery, particularly through our advocacy for the Build Back Better Act. It's been a bumpy negotiation process, but we've made tremendous progress. Because of unrelenting pressure from activists like you, we preserved paid leave in the legislation passed just this morning by the House of Representatives. But we need to keep up the momentum as the bill is considered in the Senate. Please, contact your Senator today!

The AAUW meeting in February Will be held at the Palomares House on Saturday the 5th at 10AM. It will be led by Policy Directors Joy Frew and Chris Assad and her mentee Lanique Boling. They will be speaking on and discussing systemic racism affecting education and employment of women as well as implicit bias and global connections, which are encouraging the equality of women and girls.

You have each received a copy of the penultimate version of the AAUW Fallbrook Directory.

We are hoping to hear back from each of you by December 18, after which we will print the directory and distribute it at the January meeting.

Thanks for helping us keep all the details correct and up to date!

Meet two of our new members.....

Patty Carlson

I am delighted to join this group of accomplished women. I have been passionate about professional development and education for most of my adult life.

I was co-founder of a corporate training facility specific to the property and casualty insurance industry, giving me the opportunity to assist many in career advancement and professional development. We also owned an employment agency specific to this industry. After selling that business to a major trade association, I transitioned to an executive of that organization and then went on to work for a non-profit insurance training organization for the last 10 years. I served as Chair of the Curriculum Board for the Department of Insurance for many years. I am now semi-retired and do some consulting for the predecessor insurance training organization.

I have spent over 40 years as a volunteer for the Los Angeles Orphanage Guild, which supports Maryvale, a large group foster home that started 150 years ago as the first orphanage in Los Angeles. In that group, I have served on the board, and as president, as well as the privilege of being a “big sister” for many young ladies, some of whom I still maintain a relationship.

I am originally from Wisconsin but spent my formative teen years in San Diego. For the last 40 years my husband and I have lived in the San Fernando Valley. We moved to Fallbrook almost 8 years ago and love it!

I love dance and music, I am both a teacher and student of Belly dance, as well taking Zumba classes and also playing Ukulele. I love being a grandma to Cash (5) and Inez (3) who live in the Los Angeles Area with our son and his wife.

Karin Moore

Karin (pronounced Kareen) started as an Engineer, with a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering from Cal State University Northridge. She worked for several years at the City of Los Angeles, Department of Water & Power, who sponsored her Master’s in Business Administration, which she earned at Pepperdine University. It was at Pepperdine where she met her husband, Richard. They have two wonderful college-aged children, a son & a daughter, both working on their undergrads in the state of Washington. Karin pivoted her career to Software in 1997 and has since then grown her career at companies such as Microsoft, Intuit, Optum, and most recently Teradata. Karin is on sabbatical, earning her PhD in Global Leadership &

Change, once again at Pepperdine University.

Karin and Richard landed in Fallbrook from their many visits as they went from their respective parents' homes back and forth in Southern California. When it was time to return to San Diego, from living in Seattle (15 years), they found Fallbrook to be just the town they were looking for in their forever home. Karin's interests and passions range in mentoring career professionals (especially mid-career women), reading, gardening, yoga (twice certified yoga instructor), and travel. She is super excited to have found AAUW, many thanks to Susan Duling for recruiting her.

Hi, Friends,

I thought you might want to see a thank-you response from Dot Zenovic, based on the birthday card we sent to her. As you know, she is living independently in a retirement community. She was a very significant member of AAUW in the 1980s and 1990s (including membership before and after those dates).

*Dear Karen and friends,
How warmly to be getting a signature card on my 97th birthday remembering a happy past.
I wish you all a long history of happy memories,
Cordially,
Dot Zenovic*

If anyone wants to send her a personal note from time to time, I trust she would appreciate. Her address is 100 Holland Glen, Escondido CA 92026. I am also thinking about visiting her around Christmas if anyone would like to join me, we can carpool.

Movie Review Group

Carole Hodges

The November Movie Review group met at the home of Marli and Rich Shoop, who were both the hosts AND the reviewers of the musical "Diana." We all had a wonderful time - once again sharing a pot-luck. The evening was warm enough to gather outside on the deck, which was surprising for November!

Our next meeting will be Friday, January 14, at the home of Susan and John Duling. Karin and Richard Moore will be reviewing our movie: "The Harder They Fall" which is a step into the metaverse.

Fallbrook Scarecrow Days, Part 2

By Nancy Heins-Glaser

Center four: Nancy Heins-Glaser, Peggy Scudder, BJ Lane, and Jeanie Curtright

(Note: Part 1 was in the November 2021 issue of Women with Vision)

Then along came Laura Scudder, created by BJ Lane's miraculous realistic paper clay face and attention to fine costuming. Scudder Foods is a local legend in California, so her likeness was created in a realistic manner by Lane. Scudder was appropriately displayed in front of a successful cooking store, having been one of the first women in the U.S. to establish a successful food manufacturing company in California. Due to her accounting and business savvy, determination, and dedication to her employees, Scudder was able to continue manufacturing food during the great depression. The Scudder Foundation has provided scholarship funds for AAUW Fallbrook's mentees supporting young college-bound women as a mission of AAUW for girls to pursue higher education.

Thus began a journey that no one could predict. During an International Women's Day planning event where AAUW Fallbrook's VP for Membership, Jeanie Curtright, was setting the presenters and content for AAUW March of 2018. Several members suggested we create refined unique artistically rendered sculpturettes which would honor several international women in history. Peggy Scudder became instrumental in accurate costuming of our characters.

BJ Lane again stepped up to create the faces of Frida Kahlo, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Harriet Tubman. These sculptettes were created in detail through costume by Curtright, Scudder, and Nancy Heins-Glaser, with realistic likeness by the very talented BJ Lane. A presentation by Fallbrook author Sarah Bates of her fact-based fiction book "The Lost Diaries of Elizabeth Cady Stanton" led to the next project. As Stanton was a known figure through the study of suffragettes she seemed uniquely placed in her position as a woman with many children. Lane was approached about creating a sculptette of Stanton who became nearly real. As Stanton's best friend, Susan B. Anthony seemed a logical next step. All the while "The Scarecrow Days" continued on with several AAUW-inspired scarecrows that followed: Soccer Olympian Megan Rapinoe (BJ Lane and Lesley Ibaven with mentors/mentees), Sonia Sotomayor (by Abdelrahman), Greta Thunberg (Carolyn Thom). Soon there were 10.

In the moving and storage of each scarecrow and sculptette, I noted there formed a core of significant women. Personally, I actually began to hear their connection to one another. Thus began the journey to the road to the composition, creation, and completion of a 34-minute documentary short, which involved the author/writer Patricia Watts, setting up nine staged readers with characters alongside each reader for reference. Thus, The "Quad Collaborative +" became the core for a group of women that formed a collaborative effort working to create "Women Talk: Women Of History." The objective was two-fold: to demonstrate to smaller museums or historical societies that they could create realistic characters so there would be no reason to ignore women's history; and to create a lasting visual document to inspire women of all ages. One true regret is in not including former First Lady Michelle Obama. I still hope one day she may agree to provide a voice-over introduction encouraging women of all ages to search their own histories too.

Research for the completed documentary included 40 additional women's stories during five set periods of time by eras: Standing on the Shoulders of Those Who Came Before; Passing The Torch; Opening Doors; Breaking The Ceiling; and Building Bridges To The Future. These women were selected by many of us as being essential to tell the whole story of women's suffrage all the while realizing the list is endless, that there are too many known and unknown to include them all. This production involved only one run-through. A local recent Fallbrook High School graduate created the footage and local experienced high school educator Gorge Herring completed the required edits to complete the documentary. We used the local Reche Schoolhouse as our setting for the movie, creating an authenticity because of its own history.

The end result is a movie that details our collaborative efforts and collective energies. One singular contribution requesting Spanish be used to portray Frida Kahlo was perhaps one of the most important ones. This came from one of our readers (voicing Sonia Sotomayor) a noted educational advocate Leticia Maldonado-Stamos: Please provide Spanish language translation to be read by reader Tania Aguirre. Not only was this a significant recommendation but seen by many as a compelling and unique and stand out performance.
